Railway History

On the guided walking tours you will learn and see much of the most interesting history and highlights of this railway line, which was built 151 years ago.

The railway initially changed the life in valley, attracting new business, but also driving off traditional ones. Disaster struck when the tunnel was built and other difficulties had to be overcome too. But the biggest set-back for the line was the building of a new direct railway line via Gelterkinden incorporating a longer base tunnel, thus eliminating the heavy gradients of the old Hauenstein line. Facts and anecdotes will be told on these attractive guided tours, and you don't have to speak German, as your guide not only speaks German, but also English, French and Italian. A lunch will be served at a local bio farm. Return journey will be by steam train of course.

Tour dates

Sunday, September 27 / Wednesday, September 30 / Sunday, October 11

The tours start in Sissach at 9.55 and end in Olten at 15.30, returning by steam train to Sissach. Walking time will be 3 hours. The cost of 105.- CHF (38.- CHF for children born after 1996) includes the steam train ticket. The number of participants is limited, early reservation is therefore highly recommended.

Clean Steam is more than an Event – it is the Future

The company "Modern Steam am Hauenstein GmbH" intends to introduce regular clean steam trains on the currently highly unprofitable line over the Hauenstein. Steam trains would draw a lot more tourists to this sparsely populated region, not only improving the economy of the trains but of the entire region. This has been confirmed by a study done at the university of Winterthur.

Energy from the Region

Modern steam trains are environmentally friendly. Thanks to the newly developed ultra-clean combustion of light fuel oil, modern steam locomotives are cleaner than diesel locomotives. But there is more to it and plans are currently being developed to use local methane.

Win-Win Situation for Everyone

The steam trains help to coordinate the various attractions and services of the region: Hotels, restaurants, railway stations, farms, tourist attractions, museums and shops.
